Introduction

No matter which type of sale screen you are using, each contains the same feature for overriding prices. Please note that the screen shot used below is of the Touch Sales Screen, but the customer controls appear the same in each sale screen. Depending on the hardware that your system uses, such as a mouse, keyboard, or touch screen, will affect the way these steps are performed, so please select the option that best matches your systems configuration.

- Pre Condition - The process described below assumes that the sales screen has already been opened and is in its default state. In this state the sale screen will always refer to the cash customer.

- Step 1 - Scan a product into the sale. The price override button becomes available once the sale contains a product.

- Option 1 - Click the Price Override button (shown below). This will open the Override Price And/Or Quantity dialogue.

- Option 2 - If you have a keyboard installed, you can also use the keyboard shortcut Alt + P to start a price override.
Step 2 - Navigating the Override Price And/Or Quantity dialogue

After clicking the Price Override button, the override price dialogue appears. The dialog will already have the product's current price selected. The dialogue shows the product, current price, quantity and total, and provides inputs for adjusting price or quantity. Simply type in a new price, using either a keyboard or the virtual keypad on the right of the dialog. You may also override quantity on this screen if you wish.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Issue:</th>
<th>Decimal place in incorrect spot on sale screen and receipts in fuel module</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Solution:</td>
<td>Amicus calculates the price per litre from the total cost divided by the quantity. So if the quantity value from the pump is incorrect it will affect the price per as well. You can determine where the decimal place goes in C:\Enabler\enbconfig.exe -&gt; Pumps tab -&gt; display formats. For instance, if the quantity was 1.918 when it should have been 19.18 and the price per litre was 12.39 instead of 1.239, you can fix this by changing the quantity display format from 0.000 to 0.00.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Issue:
When scanning an item, the wrong price appears, or it prompts you for a price when it already has one.

Solution:
This usually occurs in a shop setup with a back office till(s) and front ones; and it's usually caused by a system time difference between the two, so the price is being updated at time X and the item is being scanned at time Y. Make sure all tills have the exact same system time.

Introduction

The Diagnostic Tool is used to analyse issues that may occur rarely when running Amicus, that are outside Neotechnology's ability to control. It can be used in some cases to correct some common types of issues automatically without the need to contact Amicus support. If the issue cannot be fixed automatically, it provides important information to aid dealers in fixing the problem manually. If you encounter errors making or working with sales, payments or products, it is strongly advised to run the diagnostic tool before contacting support.
How To Access This Screen

You can access the diagnostic tool through the Amicus file menu under Help > Diagnostic Tool...

How To Use This Screen

Once the diagnostic tool is open, click the Run button to begin the analysis. The may take some time, depending on how large your Amicus system is. When analysis is complete, the tool will show which, if any, faults were found. If faults have been found, the Repair button becomes available. By default, all detected faults will be selected for repair. You may manually select specific faults if you wish, and use the Select All/None check box if multiple faults are found. Click Repair to allow Amicus to attempt to repair the selected faults.

Historical Worth
The Historical Worth is similar to $$Worth$$, its the number of the items in stock by the most recently submitted cost instead of most recently recieved cost. i.e. you may recieve an item then sell it before its stock reciept is created.

Example;
When using $$FiFo$$

Sunday you recieve 10 items for $4 per item and put in a stock reciept, the total cost is $40 with a total worth of $40. then you recieve another 10 items at a cost of $5 and submitt a stock receipt, then you will have 20 items at a total worth of $100 (at $5 each) and a total cost of $40 + $50 = $90.

On Monday you receive an additional 10 items at a $6, without submitting a stock receipt at the time. On Tuesday we sold 25 items. At this stage NBA AMicus will believe the cost to be $5 per item and records the sale item cost at $5 per item.

On Wednesday we submit the stock receipt for the 10 items at the cost price of $6 each. Note: the sale records are not modified. If a report is run for the period from Sunday until Thursday, we will have the following results;

When calculating by cost the total will be, $40 (for the first 10) + $50 (for the second 10) + $25 (5×$5) (for 5 of the last 10), the cost is taken directly from the sale item record.
When calculating by worth total will be, $60 (for the first 10) + $60 (for the second 10) + $30 (5×$6) (for 5 of the last 10),
When calculating by historical worth, the total will be, $50 (for the first 10) + $50 (for the second 10) + $25 (5×$5) (for 5 of the last 10),

This shows that the worth is calculated from the last received cost, while the Historical Worth is calculated from the last submitted cost.

Worth

The worth is the number of the items in stock by the most recently received $cost$.

i.e. you receive 4 items at a cost of $2 and put in a stock receipt for that cost, then receive 2 items at a cost of $5 and put in a stock receipt at that cost.

Using $FiFo$,

The total cost is $8 (4x$2) (for the first 4 items) plus $10 (2x$5) (for the second 2 items) = $18,

The total worth is $20 (4x$5) (for the first 4) plus $10 (2x$5) (for the second 2 items) = $30,

Using $LiFo$,

The total cost is $8 (4x$2) (for the first 4 items) plus $10 (2x$5) (for the second 2 items) = $18,

The total worth is $8 (4x$2) (for the first 4) plus $4 (2x$2) (for the second 2 items) = $12,
